What could be more perfect than Paris in September! Design Guides Susan Schultz and Deb Barrett are going back to Paris and will be taking an exclusive group of design aficionados August 31-September 8, 2010 for Maison et Objet. The group is limited to 12 people to keep the low-key, non-tour approach. The group will take advantage of a few extra days in Paris to get the most out of the shows as well as have enough time to really enjoy Paris. It's a once in a lifetime chance to attend the ultimate design show!

"We are frequently asked by designers if we have ever considered taking other with them when we travel to design shows. In response to those requests, we took our first group in January of this year, says Barrett. "After rave reviews from the group we decided to do another version for the September edition of Maison et Objet." Schultz added, "This is very much a self guided tour. We'll get you where you want to go and will walk the aisles with you and share experiences over cocktails each night, but you make the decision when and where and what you want to do. No cattle calls on buses, mandatory dinners, just a fabulous time with a group of women that shares the same passion- design". They have built an itinerary that will give the group a full experience. Tour highlights include:

- Hotel d' Aubusson; a four-star, double-occupancy in the heart of St. Germain
- Admission to Maison & Objet and Le Club
- Welcome reception at M&O from show management and exclusive M&O trend presentation
- As-you-wish meet-ups for cocktails or dinner to review the day, compare notes, share stories, etc.
- Cruise on the river Seine
- Free entrance to the Louvre or Orsay

To make the most of the Parisian design adventure, Deb and Susan will host a pre-travel webinar to preview locations M&O planning, travel details, their Paris faves and more. Topping it off, they have added private design destinations to some of the best and most exclusive ateliers and showrooms in Paris.
